Nicholas's Christmas Visit, Many think, but it isn't true— Santa Chus comes as he used to do: The world has grown so large of late He loads up early and doesn twait. This year he has agents to do it all, And don't go around to the houses at all; He has one place in every town. Where his presents can all be found. At midnight last week he went to Bunce And there unloaded his sleigh at once— Just as he done in years before— He filled chock full Bunce's Store. With presents for Katie, Nellie and John. And hundreds of others, all written down; He says your mothers must go to Bunce. And have the goods sont home at once. With every gift, be it one or more. A present goes from Bunce's Stre. A monument to the great swedish naturalist, Linnseus, was unveiled in Stockholm yesterday the 100th anniversary of his death. The Duke d'Ossmen, reputed to be the most powerful and the hautiest nobleman in Spain, has one Bribery, Perjury and palace devoted to the occupancy of the servants who have grown gray in his service. This grandee is noted as the man who respectfully declined an alliance with Eugenie Montijo, afterward Empress of the Temperance promoters have just been convicted of a great blunder in London. They had opened people's coffee rooms at low prices; but a correspondent who sailed forth on a late terrible night to test their utility, found all the gin palaces crowded and abiaze with comfort, but the "People's Cafes" closed, at 8:30 p. m. The excuse made by the managers was that it did not "pay" to keep them open after working

The census of Paris is looked forward to with much interest, In 1700 the population numbered 7:0,-000 inhabitants. Toward the end of the eighteenth century it bad diminished to 620,000, and continued to decrease until 1801, when it numbered 546,000. From that time it has steadily risen. In 1831 it was 774,338, in 1836 909,126 Twenty years later it reached 1538,613. In 1860 the annexatron of all the districts comprised between the old tions had the effect of swelling the number to 1,700,000, and to 1,825,000 in 1866. These additions nearly doubled the area of the capital. In 1872 the population showed a slight falling off compared with 1870. heing 1,851,792, against 1,900,000 in the latter year.

German newspapers are denouncing the emigration agents who deterdam, and there fleece them of their money and cause untold hardship and misery. One way in which they despoil their victims, who freagents were driven out of Hamburg by the prosecuting attorney of that city, but they have found a new haven in Holland.

There are six universities in Rus sia-two in St. Petersburg, and one each m Moscow, Kassan, Odessa, and Kharkoff. In 1866 there were n all of them 3.581 students. In 1871 the number had increased to 5 301, but 1876 it had diminished again to 4,392. As a rule Russian students have no resources of their own, and are obliged to give lessons to support themselves At Moscov many of them, especially the medical students, are said to be in a niserable condition. From 1870 to 1873, while 3.224 students finished their course of studies, 2,011 were compelled to desist without taking their degrees. Several scholarships. of the amount of from $100 to $200 yearly, have been founded by the Government and by private liberalty, but the number is still far below he number of students who have ne means of subsistence but misera bly paid lessons.

THE aged Senator Christiancy did not bring his young wife to Washington this winter, and this is what imppened to him. ( the cars $300 and the check for his baggage were stolen from his pocket. On arriving in Washington he learned that the check had enabled the thieves to steal his trunk containing his wardrobe and all the funds he had brought with him. He drew a month's pay as a senator in advance, and that night burglars took t and his watch.

DEAR SIR: Will you oblige me by giving Mr. Sloan any letters that may arrive for me in the next few weeks; he will send them to me; the Black Hills fever is gone up, and I am off for merry England, J. D. F. On Monday morning, January 15,

Mr. Flannigan did not appear at his desk, and a messenger was sent to Have You a Dollar? the St. Charles hotel after Flannigan, who on returning said he could not find him.

Geo. W. Holdrige, being sworn, says that he is assistant superintendent of the B. & M. road: that he is well acquainted with the penmanship of J. D. Flannigan, having received frequent communications from the superindent in the handwriting of said Flannigan, and that the letters are written in the handwriting of J. D Flannigan.

T. M. Marquette, sworn, says that he has never given his assent to the using of any money, or the honoring of drafts on the B & M., for the purpose of aiding the election or defeat of any person for United States Senator as the successor of P. W. Hitchcock, and never received any authority from Perkins or any one else to draw drafts or use money. He further says that the letters "T. M. M.," claimed to be endorsed on the letters in the possession of Hitchcock, purporting to have been written by Mr. Irving, were put there without his consent. An investigating committee, to prove the "true inwardness" of the Hitchcock letter of infamy, was appointed in the House vesterday, and consists of Moore, Anyan, Gibson, Pitenpatrick and Clark. Supe Adams, Hitch's private secretary, was before the committee this afternoon and testified ON OATH that he paid J. W. Flanigan SIX HUNDRED DOL-LARS FOR THE AFFIDAVIT and pretended letter, and that he paid this amount out of Hitchcock's money in the judges room in the government building at Omaha. The affidavit of J. The special committees appointed by the House and Senate respectively, have been taking testimony in the charge that the B. & M. R. R. is using money to secure the election of Briggs or Saunders. The evidence, as given by Adams, Hitchcock's private secretary, is that Adams gave J. D. There is no longer any doubt about the infamous coalition between Hitchcock, Miller and Til-E. A. Allen, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and other leading Democrats, are here, bringing great pressure upon the Democratic members for Hitchcock. A Democratic Senator from Douglas county, who refuses to ratify the corrupt compact, confirms the charge of the BEE. Senator Crawford, who has always bitterly opposed Hitchcock and never yet voted for a Republican, says: "I may vote for a Republican," referring to Hitchcock, "because I want to save my country another, Democratic member." He said to day, "I will vote for the devil if he will help my party. The Democratic members are almost equally divided on this question. Twelve or thirteen are firmly opposed to the coalition under circumstances. They say they have no faith in a corrupt party traiter like Hitchcock. During the adjournment to day Hitchcock borrowed the Governor's private room, and the weak-kneed were led in there to be bolstered up With regard to the forgery, men here are of but one opinion, i. e.: That the superintendent of the B. & M., had he made such a proposition as the one credited to him, would not likely to employ a secretary to wtite up the proposition, as well as leave it in the posdamnable scheme, is enough to
